Pets Enterprises and Traders

Association (Singapore)

Last year, the Pets Enterprises and Traders Association (Singapore) (PETAS) set out to train industry players on improving and upgrading the pet industry. We continue to do that this year, as we encourage more participants to attend the Pet Care and Management Course, conducted by Temasek Polytechnic.

We have been very successful in promoting the course, and we have to thank SPRING Singapore, the Workforce Development Agency (WDA) and the Agri-Food and Veterinary Authority of Singapore (AVA) for their support and funding.

PETAS turns 10 this year. We aim to continue educating the public on responsible pet keeping and promote community bonding through pets. We will work closely with grassroots organisations and voluntary welfare organisations to organise activities to bring like-minded people together. Our wide range of activities will also cater to the different interests of the public. These events will also help to showcase our pet shops and our industry, creating a win-win situation for all.

As our economy starts to improve and we step out of the recent financial crisis, I hope that our industry will grow and improve. With the help of training we have been providing the industry I am confident that members of PETAS are prepared for the challenges ahead. We head in the direction of providing great customer service and work towards branding ourselves as a pet hub of this region.
