Seafood Industries Association

Singapore

The Seafood Industries Association works in collaboration with the Agri-Food and Veterinary Authority of Singapore (AVA) in ensuring the safety of seafood to help the seafood industries develop a strong global market and maintain high quality and reliability of seafood products as well as services.

Singapore is a major seafood business trader in the Asian region and with countries like the United States and European Union. The support and effort of the AVA help us achieve the quality assurance systems, such as ISO 9001 and HACCP programme.

The concern with food safety among consumers has been rising in recent years. However, with the support of the AVA as the national authority on food safety, the Singapore seafood industries will continue to have the confidence of the consumers.

We would like to take this opportunity to express our thanks and gratitude to the AVA for its support and guidance. Our association would like to send its best wishes for the success of the Singapore Agri-Food Business Directory 2010.
